In the late C19 thousands of coffee taverns were opened throughout the country, mainly as an adjunct to the Temperance movement. Their aim was to establish for the first time refreshment houses where the working class could get meals and non-alcoholic drinks at appropriately low prices. Using the St Albans tavern as an example, the talk throws light on changing attitudes to alcohol consumption throughout the country.	temperance movement in St Albans	50 mins	£40 - £60 (by negotiation)	included in fee	laptop, memory stick	projector & screen (laptop for back-up)	any	evenings & occasional daytimes	any	Talks offered online.
